I do adore Frances. Apparently, those books are more educational than I'd remembered.

I am about 2/3rds of the way through the book, The Omnivore's Dilemma by Michael Pollan. A friend recommended it one night over dinner. I have not eaten a dinner without increased consciousness since! I am curious who else has/is reading the book and what has impacted the reader, what changes s/he has made in their lives.

I haven't read the book, but the issue of local sustainability is important.
Perhaps you or others might be interested in getting together informally or "webally" (my word!), to talk and share what we've been doing as large/small growers of food.
I'm sure there are many people here in Tamworth would would love to begin growing their own food but don't know where to begin.

You two should know that there is a group already meeting discussing local sustainability issues. And we have assembled a temporary "Sustainability Collection" to support them in their endeavors. For more information, check the Tamworth Exchange for meeting times, and/or click here to see the sustainability collection.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN was born in Milk Street, Boston, on January 6, 1706. His father, Josiah Franklin, was a tallow chandler who married twice, and of his seventeen children Benjamin was the youngest son.
